

EXECUTIVE SEMINAR for PROJECT MANAGERS

Why attend this Seminar?

There is an increasing demand for projects to develop the country, industry, public administration, and organization you are responsible for. Many projects fail for different reasons. Senior Executive Managers are challenged to cope with rapidly changing environments. Should you allocate resources to projects or to the normal business operations? Do we have people with calibre in projects? Are the projects managed effectively and efficiently? These and many other similar issues are rife in projects and you have to make the right decision.

How is it structured?

The Seminar is divided into 3 workshops, each is 90 minutes. It is participants-driven vs. content-driven. The contents are defined by concrete learning objectives.

What are the benefits?

- Networking
- Ideas and knowledge for improving project management

What will you learn?

- To know other Executive Managers' problems and approaches in developing solutions
- Exchange positive as well as negative experiences
- Address common problems: How to cope with...?
- Develop a personal action plan to be implemented in your organization such as principles, standards, etc.
- Get acquainted with latest international PM knowledge.

How is it conducted?

Group discussions, group presentations and short lectures

Who should attend?

Highly motivated learners striving for excellence in their career:

- Senior Executive Managers having one or more Project Managers reporting to them
- Project Managers with at least 3 years of PM-experience or having completed at least one project successfully and wanting to enlarge their knowledge by sharing own experience with and learning from others.
- Board Members of organizations wanting to improve their "Project Management Culture"
